

Two Deputies, Two Blacks Die

Mayor Blames Muslims in Shootout

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Mayor W. W. Dumas blames Black Muslims in part for a street gunfight between law enforcement officers and blacks which left four men dead. Seven young Muslims deny their organization was involved.

A spokesman for the NAACP says he isn't sure who was involved in shooting which erupted Monday after police moved in to clear a city street of an impromptu rally at which militants were calling for improved conditions in the city's black community.

Gov. John McKeithen blamed the burst of gunfire on a downtown street two miles from Louisiana's capitol on "outsiders."

And Sheriff's Detective Capt. Bryan Clemmons Jr. says "some sort of suicide plot" might have been involved in the shootout which took the lives of two deputies and two blacks.

Twenty blacks were arrested and charged with disturbing the peace after the afternoon shootout and eight of the 20 were later charged with murder in the deaths of the two deputies.

Some 25 persons were treated for injuries, including Baton Rouge Police Chief Eddie Bauer.

Four hundred National Guard troops were called to duty to bolster local and state police in enforcing a dusk to dawn curfew. Bars and grocery stores were ordered closed.

"We have every reason to believe this is a national movement by the Muslims," Dumas said. "The information we get is that this isn't just local."

McKeithen said the city was aware of what he called the outsiders.

Mayor Dumas called me Monday morning and warned me there could be trouble," McKeithen said. "but he thought they would come to City Hall and talk to him."

Harvey Britton, field director of the Louisiana NAACP, said, "We don't know that there are Black Muslims involved. Or if it is an out-of-town or fractional group. We don't know if it was the Muslims or the NAACP or anyone else."

In speaking of a possible suicide plot, Clemmons said:

"From what we get on the streets, they told people to bring your friends to a meeting Monday and they told them to tell a policeman and you'll see something you've never seen before. So we don't know."

The dead deputies were identified as Ralph Hancock, 30, and Ralph Dewayne Wilden, 27, both white.

One black man was identified as Thomas Davis, 25 of Chicago. The other carried no identification.

The eight charged with murder were identified as Lawrence Brooks, 25, Baton Rouge; Raymond Eames, 21, Baton Rouge; Robert J. Barber, 20, Los Angeles; David McKinney, 22, Chicago; Toussaint L'Overture, 21, Chicago; Clennon Brown, 25, Chicago; Warren Hall, 25, Philadelphia, and Ridgley Williams Jr.

AFTERMATH OF VIOLENCE—Four black men lie handcuffed under the marquee of the Temple theater in east Baton Rouge, following a violent encounter of Black

Muslims and police. The confrontation left two sheriff's deputies and two blacks shot to death. Twenty-three blacks were arrested and bond for each set at $500,000. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Some New Salvos In Hughes Case

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Howard Hughes is so determined to squash the book billed as his autobiography that he may emerge from his cherished seclusion to battle it out in court, according to a spokesman for the mysterious billionaire.

Both Hughes and his opponents fired new salvos Monday in the growing battle over the controversial manuscript.

McGraw-Hill books and author Clifford Irving told newsmen in New York they not only had cancelled checks proving Hughes accepted payment for rights to his life story, but knew where the money was deposited in a secret account in Switzerland. Irving said the telephone voice from the Bahamas in the much publicized Hughes news conference was not really that of Hughes. Hughes, in a telephoned news conference Friday from his hotel suite in the Bahamas to newsmen in Los Angeles that shattered a 15-year public silence, denied he had ever received such a payment. He said such a large transaction could not be hidden if it really took place, and denounced the autobiography as a fraud.

McGraw-Hill and Life magazine replied that they have proof the manuscript is authentic and Hughes helped prepare it, and will push ahead with plans to publish the book, and excerpts from it in the magazine, as planned.

A Hughes Tool Co. spokesman said it was possible that Hughes would appear in court himself. "We can't say anything more at this time, but Mr. Hughes does not intend to let this fraudulent story of his life go unchallenged," the spokesman said.

In New York, Harold W. McGraw, Jr., president of McGraw-Hill books, displayed for newsmen facsimiles of what he said were endorsements by Hughes of the checks the publishing firm made out to him for rights to his story. McGraw-Hill also has a nine-page letter in Hughes' own handwriting, authorizing the firm to announce publication of the autobiography, McGraw said.

McGraw did not reveal the amount of money involved, but in the telephone interview Hughes said he understood it was supposed to be $300,000.

The signatures, and the handwriting, have been checked against copies of Hughes' signature and handwriting on documents in Nevada and have been confirmed authentic by experts, McGraw said.

Sen. Rolison told The Freeman today that "revolt" is strong language but the seven senators have been balking because they felt they were being taken for granted by the Senate's Majority Leader Earl Brydges.

Rolison said that the seven, who he said belong to no bloc or clique of representatives such as exists in Nassau County and have a strong bond in that they have been mainly interested in stemming the spiraling costs of running the state and prefer genuine economy moves instead.

They also believe that Gov. Rockefeller and Brydges are more interested in securing revenue than cutting costs, according to Rolison.

Sen. Ronald B. Stafford of

By LYNN MULVANEY

Assemblyman H. Clark Bell has been reappointed to the powerful Assembly Ways and Means Committee as well as being renamed to the Judicial and Government Employees Committees indicating that he continues to enjoy the approval of the GOP leadership in Albany, despite his recent vote against the state budget.

Bell's reappointments also mean an advance in seniority on all the committees he serves.

Meanwhile, State Sen. Jay P. Rolison, who also represents Ulster County as well as Dutchess County, and who did vote for the state budget, nevertheless has joined with six other upstate legislators in what has been described as a "revolt" in the ranks of the Senate.

Sen. Rolison told The Freeman today that "revolt" is strong language but the seven senators have been balking because they felt they were being taken for granted by the Senate's Majority Leader Earl Brydges.

Rolison said that the seven, who he said belong to no bloc or clique of representatives such as exists in Nassau County and have a strong bond in that they have been mainly interested in stemming the spiraling costs of running the state and prefer genuine economy moves instead.

They also believe that Gov. Rockefeller and Brydges are more interested in securing revenue than cutting costs, according to Rolison.

Sen. Ronald B. Stafford of

Peru, one of the seven so-called "appleknockers," said that when Brydges began the drive for votes for Rockefeller's revenue program, they balked.

"But we were told we could be picked off one by one."

It is reported that Brydges, in his attempt to secure the seven senators votes, called on them one by one, apparently in an effort to personally win them over, point out his upstate relationship with them (he represents the Niagara Falls area) and to perhaps apply some political pressure to keep them in line.

Rolison said today that the seven felt "it was time to stop talking, that they didn't like the way things were going fiscally and to show some backbone."

He said that the issue was not a personal one with Brydges, that the seven senators were "not trying to upend him," they had "no axe to grind" and that "none asked for anything for themselves or their districts."

In a meeting with the governor, the seven reportedly told him that "they no longer feel they have the proper representation in the Legislature which they deserve." In doing so they pointed to the large bloc of senators such as those in Nassau County, who operate as a unit to their own advantage.

Sen. Stafford explained recently that, "The way we were being treated at the session, we might just as well have sent our proxies."

Another of the seven, H.

It was Barclay who insisted that the governor give an audience to all seven senators instead of employing individual persuasive tactics on each.

The now happy seven, who are reportedly pleased that they finally got some attention, say that they will continue to stick together from now on, putting forth a strong voice on issues as they arise in 1972.

Meanwhile, Brydges, who was apparently surprised by the uprising among the usually mild-mannered upstate senators, is also perhaps a bit unhappy about losing some of his control.

Commenting on the widespread use of the name "appleknockers" to describe the upstate legislators, Sen. Rolison took exception stating, "it makes us look like a bunch of rubes," suggesting that perhaps the label was meant as a means of discrediting them.

CHEN YI

HONG KONG (UPI)—Chen Yi, Communist China's foreign minister, former army marshal and close friend of China's top leaders, died Jan. 6 of cancer, and was buried Monday, Radio Peking said today.

Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung attended the funeral in Peking's Papaoshan Cemetery and Premier Chou En-lai, a friend of Chen's for more than 50 years, delivered the eulogy.

Chen, 71, died of intestinal cancer. He had been incapacitated for several years and unable to perform his duties as foreign minister.

Chi Peng-fei was named acting foreign minister, but the fact he was not named immediately to succeed Chen was an indication of Chen's high standing in the Communist party ranks.

Chou, in his eulogy, described Chen as an outstanding member of the party and the Chinese army, and said his death was a "great loss."

"The death of comrade Chen Yi means we have lost an old and trusted comrade-in-arms and is a loss for our party and our army," Chou said.

Li Teh-sheng, the army's chief political commissar, presided over the funeral.

It was the largest gathering of China's leaders since May 1, when the other marshals lost their titles when ranks were abolished in the Chinese army in 1965.

Court Voids School Law

NEW YORK (AP)—A three-judge federal court today declared unconstitutional a 1971 New York State law providing state financial aid to church-related schools.

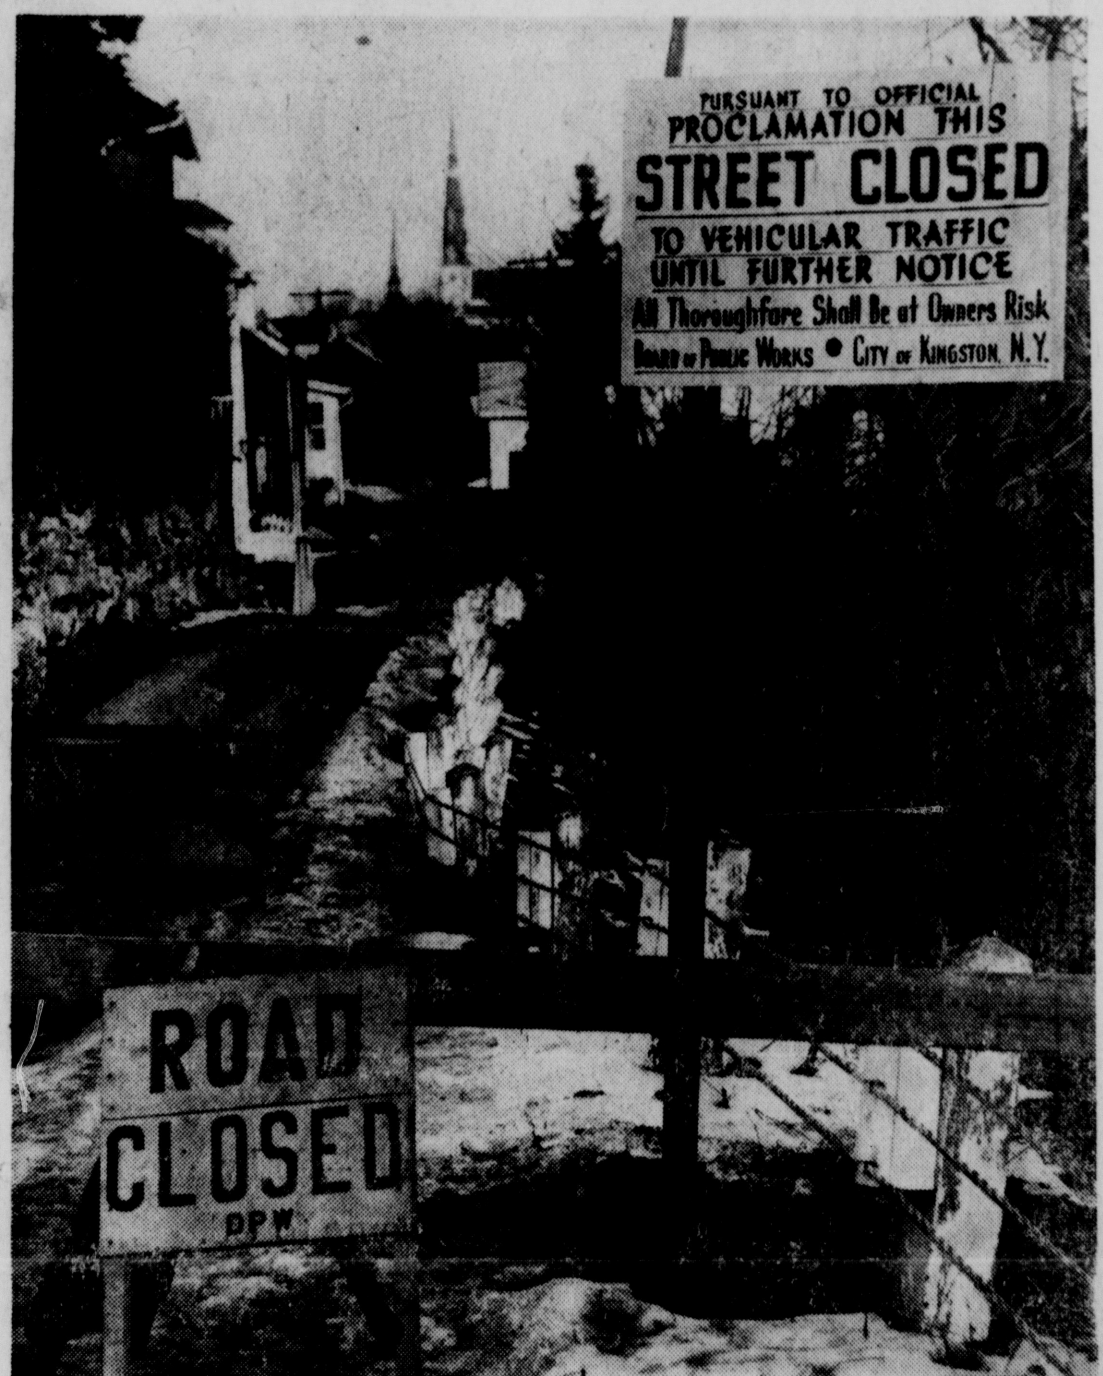

The court enjoined enforcement of Chapter 822 of the state laws, entitled: "An act to provide acceptable secular educational services for pupils in nonpublic schools."

Chen commanded the Communist 3rd field army in the last year of China's civil war and was named military commandant and mayor of Shanghai after the Communists captured the city in 1949. He continued as mayor until 1958.

Chen was named a vice premier in 1954, a field marshal in 1955 and foreign minister in 1958.

At one point he was considered a possible successor to Chou as premier and he accompanied Chou to a number of conferences, including the meeting on Indochina held in Geneva in 1954.

Chou was a target of the Red Guard uprising in the latter half of the 1960s but he survived the revolution and continued to hold his post as foreign minister.

Spruce Street Repair Could Cost $50,000

City officials have posted signs on Spruce Street, between Hudson and Ravine, warning travelers of a hazardous condition on the street. Residents of the street, 15 home owners and two tenants, were notified by registered mail on Friday. Estimates on repairs range from a low of $20,000 for the 150 feet of road bed needing work, to $50,000. "It's difficult to say how much it will cost," City Engineer Thomas R. Wickman told the Freeman. "It looks like it's going to be very expensive." Mayor Francis R. Koenig, who posted the warning signs on Friday for a 30-day period, said the repair work "would probably be contracted out." (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Black Education...NAACP Discussion

KINGSTON A wide-ranging discussion on the education of black students in the Kingston City Schools Consolidated highlighted Monday's meeting of the Kingston Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Everette Hodge, local NAACP

director, said his organization will work in coming months to improve the education possibilities of area black students. Hodge was critical of "computers and tests that are geared for upper middle class students" that consequently do not accurately represent the capabilities of the children from poor families.

"There should be a definite change from 'progressive education' to a return of the 3 R's," said Hodge, "so that our kids are better trained. We're out to destroy the myth that a black child cannot learn as well as anyone else." Hodge added "Where a child lives, or his family background, doesn't make any difference in his ability to learn, as long as they're given an equal chance."

The NAACP also will try to convince local school districts to hire a black guidance counselor. "As far as I know," said Hodge, "there isn't one in this area." Hodge also contended that there are no blacks teaching the "important subjects" such as math, English and history, in the Kingston school system. "This is a great disadvantage to the black child," he added. The NAACP also began plans Monday night for its Sojourner Truth program, slated for March 10.

Plans are also underway, said Hodge, for the showing of the film "King-A Journey From Montgomery to Memphis." A date will be announced later. Monday's meeting also included the showing of the film "Eye of the Storm," the critically acclaimed portrayal of an experiment by a mid-west teacher who separated her students into blue-eyed and brown-eyed sections to demonstrate the effects of discrimination.

Greene County Youth Dies in Highway Crash

By WALTER S. CLARK

CATSKILL

A 15-year-old Greene County girl was fatally hurt and several other persons were injured as the result of highway accidents investigated in Ulster and Greene Counties on Monday by area authorities. One mishap resulted in an arrest on drugs charge.

Leeds State Police identified the dead girl as Wanda Finch, of 50 Lafayette Avenue, Catskill.

Troopers Nolan J. Pazin and Joseph J. Syversten reported the girl was a passenger in a car driven by 16-year-old Joseph K. Mitaly of 12 North Church Street, Athens, when the car went out of control on Route 385 in the Village of Athens and slammed into a concrete abutment.

The driver and passenger were taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital here, and later the girl was transferred to Albany Medical Center, where she died at 4 a.m., troopers said. She suffered multiple fractures and internal injuries.

Mitaly was reported in fair condition at the local hospital where he is under treatment for a fracture of the left leg, multiple abrasions and contusions and internal injuries. Troopers said the probable cause of the fatal mishap was speed to fast for conditions.

Meanwhile, Hurley State Police reported a two-car crash occurred on Route 375 south of Route 212 in West Hurley at 12:45 a.m. today. The vehicles were operated by John Miles, 49, of West Hurley, and Peter Stoll, 26, of Mountainview Avenue, Woodstock, and Hunt Beach, Calif.

A report of Troopers Edward A. Zeboris and Robert C. Schanck noted that Miles was southbound on Route 375 when his car crossed the center markings and reportedly hit the left rear of the Stoll vehicle.

Stoll was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance and treated for injuries of the back and head. Investigation of the mishap resulted in Stoll's arrest on a charge of criminal possession of dangerous drugs third degree — marijuana and unidentified pills. His case is pending before Hurley Town Justice C. H. DuMond.

Miles was cited for failure to keep to the right.

Hurley State Police also investigated a one-car accident that occurred at 5 p.m. Monday on Ulster Landing Road, Town of Ulster.

Trooper John H. Kohland reported Kenneth Van Norstrand, 30, of RD 1, Oak Street, Middlehope, formerly of Kingston, was driving north when his car went out of control and veered off the road and hit a house. Van Norstrand sustained cuts of the hands. A passenger, Robert Baker, 37, of the Middlehope address suffered a laceration over his right eye.

Both were taken to Benedictine Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance.

Trooper Kohland cited Van Norstrand for driving while intoxicated. The case is pending the nation with no evidence Trooper John J. Schatzel of Ellenville State Police reported Barbara Solono, 23, of Detroit, Mich., was northbound on the highway when she lost control on a curve. She was taken to Kingston Hospital suffering lacerations of the head and possible internal injuries, police said.

Ulster Conservatives Call for BOCES Defeat

that this provides better quality education."

The Conservative Party of Ulster County has called on voters to defeat the proposal for a new BOCES educational center in the Jan. 19 referendum.

A party spokesman said that figures obtained from BOCES headquarters in New Paltz showed that construction costs would total $7.5 million, with another $6.2 million for interest on a 20-year bond issue for a facility serving 2,040 vocational and special high school students.

"Why cannot the BOCES administration expand into vacant facilities now available in centralized areas of the county if this need exists?" the spokesman asked. "New York taxpayers already pay the highest per-pupil education costs in the nation with no evidence

The spokesman noted that estimated costs amount to almost $7,000 per pupil for the proposed center in Bloomingtown, and that busing costs for extended service from up to 25 miles away will be added to the usual operation and maintenance costs. "Proponents say $4 million is anticipated from state aid, but our present state fiscal crisis creates grave doubts about the availability of any of this," the spokesman said.

Testimonial Dinner Planned For Dr. Emeline P. Hayward

KINGSTON A testimonial dinner for Dr. Emeline P. Hayward, director of the Mental Health Center in Kingston, will be given Wednesday, Jan. 12 at the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

Dr. Hayward's retirement from her post was announced last month and was accepted by the Mental Health Board.

Dr. Hayward sought to retire earlier but stayed on at the request of the board and the Ulster County Legislature until a successor could be found.

Deputy Director of Mental Health, Dr. Ghuland Faruki is expected to be named to the post.

Dr. Hayward, formerly in private practice in New York City, first retired in 1962 and was later "drafted" by doctors in Kingston who recognized her ability and sought her services as staff psychiatrist at the Mental Health Center. She was named director in 1966 at a time when there were but 157 patients on the clinic rolls. Today, 1,281 persons benefit from the center's services.

Legislature Begins Campaign to Oust Wyman

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The campaign to block the confirmation of George K. Wyman as state social services commissioner has begun in the legislature, with several Republican members complaining about his stewardship of the state welfare program.

"We have ineffective management," said Assemblyman James L. Emery, R-Genesee, in a speech Monday in the Assembly. He said the recent report of a $1 billion loss through New York City's administration of the Medicaid program could be traced to the "ineffective, inactive role of the State Social Services Department."

"You're sloughing off in competence," said Assemblyman Lawrence Corbett, R-Fort Edward, after several Democrats objected to the attack. In the Senate, which will make the decision whether to confirm Wyman's appointment, William T. Smith, R-Big Flats, vowed to lead the fight against confirmation.

Smith conferred privately with Robert Douglass, secretary to Gov. Rockefeller, about the matter but he would not change his mind. Smith said several other Republican senators would join in the opposition.

Smith is chairman of the legislature's study committee on welfare and Emery is vice-chairman. Corbett, also a member of the panel, is chairman of the Assembly committee on welfare.

The debate on Wyman dominated legislative activity Monday. Both the Senate and Assembly recessed until next Monday after brief sessions.

In other action in the Capitol: —Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea announced three changes in committee leadership for the regular session. Edwyn Mason of Hobart was replaced as Agriculture Committee chairman by Donald C. Shoemaker of Webster, J. G. McCarthy of Huntington was named to the vacant position of Insurance Committee chairman. He was succeeded as Housing Committee Chairman by Francis J. Boland of Binghamton. All are Republicans.

—Emery and Assemblyman Frank Walkley, R-Castile, presented petitions from wives of prison guards to T. Norman Hurd, director of governmental operations. The petitions, bearing about 4,000 names, sought such things as updating of prison guard training program and promotion from the ranks.

—Discussions continued in a conference room near Rockefeller Hall on a reapportionment plan for congressional districts, which the legislature will consider later this month. State Republican Chairman Charles Lanigan was among the participants in the meeting.

Smith's committee thought they had forced out Wyman last year when the legislature gave the governor the power to appoint the state social services commissioner. Formerly, the State Board of Social Welfare appointed the commissioner.

Smith and Emery said they were disappointed when Rockefeller reappointed Wyman, who has held the job for almost ten years and is a career welfare administrator.

Smith says he doesn't object to Wyman personally, just the way he administers the program.

"I was in California and saw how (Gov. Ronald) Reagan did it," Smith told a reporter. "He brought in a guy from the Department of Transportation. A young guy, business-like."

His committee, he said, will work this year to refine the state welfare laws. "If I was confident the department would run it the way the legislature wants it run, we wouldn't need the laws," he said.

Assemblyman Mason Ousted As Agriculture Chairman

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Assemblyman Donald S. Shoemaker of Webster assumed the chairmanship of the Agriculture Committee today, replacing Edwyn Mason, a Hobart Republican who often voted contrary to party positions during the three years he held the job.

Mason was the only Assembly committee chairman to be replaced without explanation by Speaker Perry B. Duryea, who announced his committee designations for 1972 Monday. All of the chairmen he named are members of the Republican majority.

Assemblyman J.G. McCarthy of Huntington, who had been Housing Committee chairman, was named to take the place of Alfred D. Lerner of Queens as chairman of the Insurance Committee. Lerner was elected a State Supreme Court judge in November.

Assemblyman Francis J. Boland of Binghamton was named to take the Housing Committee chairmanship vacated by McCarthy.

All the other chairmen were re-designated.

When asked why he had been replaced, Mason replied "no comment. I've got enough trouble as it is."

Duryea also had no comment. Mason conceded in a recent interview that his independence had caused him problems. Under the legislative reapportionment plan passed by a special session—a plan Mason voted against—he is now sharing his district with Democratic Assemblywoman Mary Ann Krupak of Amsterdam.

An Assembly staff member, however, discounted the idea that Mason had been replaced because he often voted independently. "It was felt there were opinions from within the Assembly as a body that he did not extend the courtesies...that he did not always show up for committee hearings—stay at them."

It was also suggested by Assembly aide that Shoemaker, a farmer who has been a member of the Agriculture Committee since shortly after being elected in 1965, would be more attuned to agriculture. Mason is a lawyer.

Although Mason's divergent views most often showed up in fiscal matters, he was not present to vote on the financial legislation during the last special session.

He said at the time of the reapportionment that he was considering running for the State Senate, rather than seeking reelection in his 113th district.

Education, Mrs. Constance D. Cook of Ithaca; Ethics, Richard L. Marshall of Elmira; Government Employees, William Rosenberg of Brighton; Governmental Operations, Frank Walkley of Castile; Health, Martin Ginsberg of Hicksville; Judiciary, Edward Crawford of Oswego; Labor, Frederick Warder of Geneva.

Local Governments, Charles Henderson of Hornell; Rules, Perry Duryea; Social Services, Lawrence Corbett of Fort Edward; Transportation, Joseph Finley of Newark; Ways and Means, Willis Stephens of Brewster.

Queen Elizabeth Fire... Sabotage Suspicion Mounts

HONG KONG (AP) — Suspicions of sabotage in the Queen Elizabeth fire mounted today, but Hong Kong's fire chief said he had no evidence to support the speculation.

The South China Morning Post said an official of the company that owned the former luxury liner reported the fire broke out simultaneously Sunday in four different locations. The official, W. S. Pau, marine superintendent for shipping magnate, C. Y. Tung's Island Navigation Corp., could not be reached for confirmation of the report, and another company officer, C. S. Wang, denied it.

The Elizabeth's last British master, Commodore Geoffrey Marr, said in London on Monday that the flames spread too quickly to have started accidentally, "it must have been sabotage."

The Hong Kong fire services chief, Harry Wood, told a news conference he had no evidence to support speculation the fire was started deliberately and he had "no idea where or how the fire started."

The fire chief said he was surprised at the intensity of the fire when firemen were called in. But he added that he had never known a big passenger liner to be saved after fire gained a firm hold.

The 83,000-ton ship rolled over on her starboard side Monday in 50 feet of water near Tsing Yi Island, at the western outskirts of Hong Kong harbor. Approximately half the ship was above the surface, and the fire still burned inside the hull.

The Queen Elizabeth was the world's largest passenger liner and the flagship of the Cunard Line until her age and airline competition retired her in 1968. After the failure of attempts to establish her in the United States as a floating hotel and convention center, Tung bought her, renamed her the Seawise University and was converting her into a floating campus for Chapman College of Orange, Calif.

Unless Political Climate Improves

McCarthy Threatens to Bolt Dems

By United Press International
Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who ran strongly in primaries in 1968 but failed to get the presidential nomination, said Monday he may bolt the Democratic party unless the political climate improves this year.

McCarthy said in Chicago it was "quite evident" to him that the 1972 Democratic presidential nominating convention will be controlled by the same party leaders in charge during the 1968 convention in Chicago. That convention overwhelming nominated Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who had not campaigned in any primaries. Humphrey went on to lose to Republican Richard Nixon.

Earlier Monday, Humphrey formally entered the 1972 race, announcing his candidacy at Philadelphia. He then flew to Florida where he will confront his 1968 running mate, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, in a March 14 primary.

Muskie is rated the front runner for the Democratic nomination in a field that already includes nine entries and is expected to grow to 10 later this week with the announcement of Alabama Gov. George Wallace, who received 13.5 per cent of the vote as the candidate of the American Independent party in 1968. Wallace is expected to run as a Democrat in the Florida primary.

Humphrey criticized Nixon Monday for failing to end the Vietnam War. He said if he had been elected in 1968, the war now would be over. Humphrey also pledged himself to "revitalize" the nation's economy.

Muskie took his campaign Monday to Wisconsin and received a band-playing, Main Street welcome from a crowd estimated at more than 1,000 at Marathon City, a town of 1,214 persons.

Another Democratic candidate, Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana, said at Atlanta Monday that he would enter the Florida primary today. Hartke said he wants withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam to hinge on the release of American prisoners of war. He said the United States had lost its bargaining position in the war and "had abandoned American POWs in Vietnam."

White House aides said Monday that President Nixon's self-imposed ban on partisan politics until the Republican National Convention in August does not apply to his wife, Pat, and their two daughters. "Wherever the First Lady appears from now on, there will be a political connotation," one aide said.

Jurisdiction Not Involved In Local Labor Controversy

KINGSTON Local 825 and Teamsters Local 445, he stated. "Local 825 and Local 445 are engaged in a mutual effort to protect the rights and jobs of area workers," Young said, adding that picketing "will continue until Miron agrees to abide by the law."

It has been implied that there is a jurisdictional dispute between Local 825 and another engineer's local, "This," Young said, "is untrue."

Young said there is no other local claiming jurisdiction over this plant. "This rumor spreading is merely an attempt by Miron to cover its illegal refusal to continue the employment of existing employees from this area under the existing agreement, represented by

Koenig Looking to Ohio For Possible Bus Solution

KINGSTON The city, faced with a lack of available buses in the surrounding area, is looking to a firm in Ohio to help solve its bus problem. Kingston has had no bus service since Urban Transit Company walked out on its franchise on Dec. 31.

The latest idea, according to Mayor Francis R. Koenig, is to lease "flexi-buses" from an Ohio firm. It is by no means an immediate solution as, according to Koenig, there is only one available in the country right now and manufacturing on new ones doesn't begin until next month.

The "flexi-bus" seats 20 passengers and stands ten. It is about two-thirds the size of standard buses and runs off a V-6 gasoline engine instead of diesel fuel. It has several reports that the buses carry up to 1,000 passengers a day. The

Sawyer Boosters Have Meeting

SAUGERTIES The newly named Sawyer Band Boosters face a heavy agenda when they hold their regular monthly meeting today in the Saugerties High School cafeteria.

SBB, formerly known as the Saugerties Band Parents Club, will discuss means of obtaining additional uniforms for the band. Mrs. Joseph Ellis, SBB president, said that although an extended effort by students had obtained uniforms for band members, additional effort will be needed to provide uniforms for twirlers, majorettes, and the color guard, as well as uniforms for an expected influx of new members.

Mrs. Ellis said the latest donation to the fund, $110 for a complete uniform, had been received from the Saugerties VFW Auxiliary.

Chairman Hugo Holmquist of the Ways and Means Committee said that membership cards, available to adults for $1 and to junior and senior high school students for 50 cents, are being designed and will be available soon. The committee also plans to design decals for sale in the community and hopes to hold a competition in conjunction with the high school art department to choose a design.

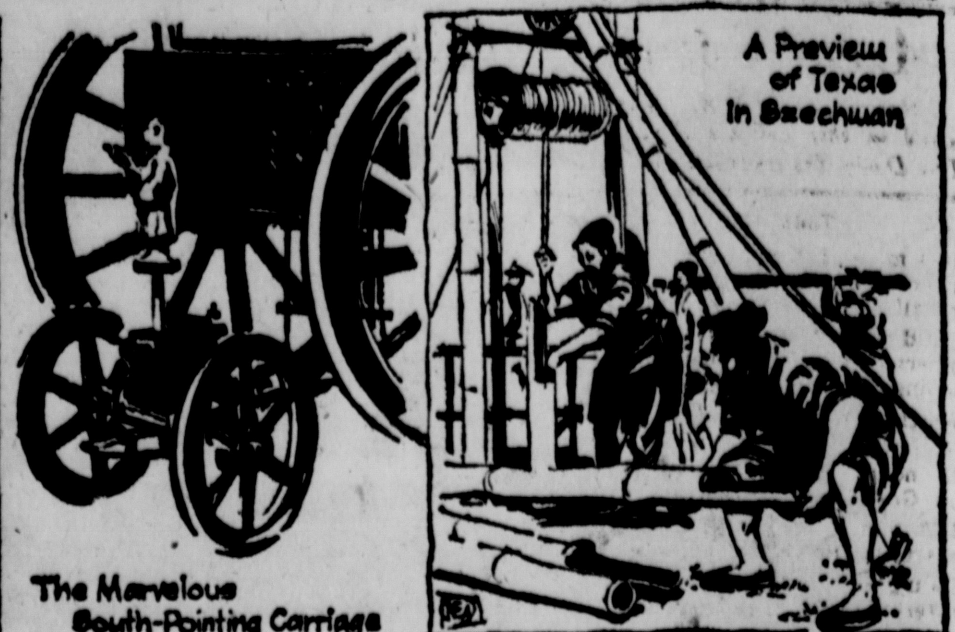

Other topics up for discussion are the possibility of incorporating the club, a report on efforts to submit a bid on old band uniforms, the possibility of an annual band banquet, and establishment of a spring band festival featuring the school's three bands.

Program Chairman Aline Steyer said that new members and interested observers are welcome to the meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m. Refreshments will follow.

One-Fourth of Mankind (8. The Brilliance of T'ang)

Ch'angan, Metropole of the World

The Marvelous South-Pointing Carriage

Today many Chinese still call themselves Men of T'ang. The Chinatowns in many American cities are called Tang-jon Chieh which, literally translated, means Streets for Men of T'ang.

—DAN J. LI

If the ancient time of the sage-kings was China's golden age in legend, the T'ang dynasty (618-906) was such in fact.

The barbarians were subdued and Chinese sovereignty was acknowledged from Korea to the gates of India. In power and extent, in population and culture, no contemporary civilization could compare with the T'ang.

By 755 the population was more than 53 million. To the capital of Ch'angan came merchants and envoys from all over the known world. In culture, the greatest flowering of the T'ang was in poetry and painting.

In religion, Buddhism reached its apex.

though the pessimistic teachings of the Gautama had been greatly modified by the basically optimistic Chinese. In reply to the challenge of Buddhism, the native Taoism, which had degenerated into a cult of alchemists and magicians, enjoyed a "counter-reformation."

But as Buddhism declined, Confucianism gained, particularly as the basis for the civil service examinations. Under later T'ang emperors, Buddhists were persecuted.

Other religions—Mohammedanism, Zoroastrianism, Nestorian Christianity—also entered, but none had Buddhism's success.

It was during the T'ang that the first book, a Buddhist text, was printed with wood blocks. This invention, together with such things as gunpowder and the compass, is familiar to the West, but the extent of Chinese inventive genius is not generally appreciated.

Among their innovations was a "south-point-carriage," a form of compass that worked by a system of gears; and deep-drilling techniques for extracting natural gas and brine—both dating back to Han times. Another was the simple foot stirrup.

According to Prof. Joseph Needham, the authority on Chinese science, if gunpowder shattered European feudalism with its castles and knights in armor, it was the foot stirrup that had made it possible in the first place.

The relentless cycle of dynasty, proceeding from the vigor of youth to the corruption of old age, eventually overtook the T'ang. Following the last weak emperor came a half-century of contest between rival families—a period noted for the beginning of the custom of binding women's feet. Finally, in 960, a new dynasty—the Sung—gained the "Mandate of Heaven."

Burglars Hit Drug Company

SHOKAN Inc., store on Route 28 in this community. Although an inventory has not been completed, it is believed that an undetermined amount of drugs, possibly barbiturates and amphetamines was taken.

According to authorities, Deputy Sheriff Christopher Jones and Gerald Keller responded to the alarm which reportedly was touched off when a hatchet used by the burglars cut through a telephone wire attached to the alarm.

On arrival of deputies the intruders had fled. Investigator Douglas Van Giesen, who is continuing the investigation with Senior Investigator Harold Bowers, said the hatchet used to chop a hole through the roof near the chimney, was found in the drug store.

Ulster County Conservatives Score Rocky

KINGSTON
Ulster County's Conservative Party has criticized the state government for a platform of "increased taxes, increased spending and reduced services."

In a recently released statement the party said: "Having spent money and expecting revenue sources from the recently defeated Transportation Bond Issue, the Rockefeller administration now favors punishing voters for voting against his bond issue by raising the income tax retroactive to the beginning of 1971. While he, obviously with the backing of the majority of our state representatives, continues to build the Albany South Mall monument to himself at fantastic expense to the voters, we are expected to pay more taxes and accept diminished services, mainly in the form of cutbacks in state aid."

The party called Rockefeller's proposal to postpone state aid payments "an avoidance of present responsibilities by putting the load on next year's budget in the amount of $400 million dollars."

The estimate of $400 million additional income from Uncle Sam is another psychedelic trip our governor is on. This is on a par with spending money from the Transportation Bond Issue before it was defeated by the voters."

The Conservative statement says that New York has for some time levied the highest taxes in the nation on its citizens, and calls on county residents to write to Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and Senator Jay P. Rolison, urging them to "oppose fiscal irresponsibility, to oppose any increase in taxation, and to 'realistically' reduce spending."

Youth Sought In Wall Street Securities Theft

NEW YORK (UPI)—A 14-year-old boy, who played the artful dodger Monday when he relieved a 68-year-old Wall Street messenger of some $4.3 million in negotiable securities, was the object of an intense search today by police, truant officers and FBI agents.

The youth, made his getaway when he jumped into a waiting car after attacking Ernest Staiti from behind and taking the securities. The car sped off through the narrow, winding streets.

The boy was described as about 14, 5-feet-1, wearing blue dungarees, a dark jacket and white sneakers.

The robbery victim was taking the valuables from the Federal Reserve Bank to a Wall Street investment firm. A spokesman for the U.S. Trust Co. said the securities were "covered by insurance and there will be no financial loss to any customer of U.S. Trust or to the U.S. Trust company."

The envelope Staiti was carrying reportedly contained regular negotiable bonds, U.S. Treasury notes and a check—a total value of $4,318,000.

Jack Anderson Says U.S. Lies on Cambodian Part

WASHINGTON — A secret exchange between Washington and Phnom Penh reveals that officials aren't telling the truth about the U.S. role in Cambodia.

Because of congressional hostility, the Nixon Administration has pretended to take no active part in raising funds from other nations to support the tottering regime of Cambodian strongman Lon Nol.

The secret cables show, however, that the United States not only is bringing political pressure on other governments to contribute to Lon Nol but has actually prepared a solicitation letter for Lon Nol's signature.

Apparently, U.S. policymakers don't trust the Cambodian leader to write his own letters on such a delicate matter. The appeal was supposed to be addressed "on a personal basis" to other heads of state who might have a little cash to spare for Cambodian aid.

Congressmen have balked at financing Lon Nol because of the dismaying similarity between the regime and some of the corrupt, floundering South Vietnamese regimes that have cost the American taxpayers a fortune.

In an earlier column, we quoted from secret dispatches that described Lon Nol as "a sick man, both physically and mentally," and told of widespread incompetence and corruption throughout his government.

Even some of the able men under him were characterized, respectively, as "an inveterate gambler," "a compulsive womanizer" and a leader whose "personal authority is diluted by a tendency toward financial corruption."

American Ambassador Emory Swank, in one secret report, criticized "Lon Nol's haphazard, out-of-channel and ill-coordinated conduct of military operation." The result is that communist hit-and-run harrassing operations have developed — apparently much to the Viet Cong's surprise — into a serious military threat to the Cambodian capital.

Similar reports about some of South Vietnam's earlier political corruption and military bungling were kept secret from the American people. If the truth had been known in time, the United States might have been spared some of the lives and resources that have gone down the drain in Vietnam.

Because of the Vietnam experience, Congress is keeping a tight pursestring on Cambodian aid. The Nixon Administration has gone behind congressional backs, however, to sneak military supplies into Cambodia through South Vietnam and Indonesia.

Now the Administration has resorted to deception again to raise exchange support funds (ESF) for Cambodia.

Cambodia "has undertaken to do its own representation to elicit donors for the ESF," a State Department spokesman told us blandly.

Secret Instructions

But secret instructions were cabled to the American Embassy in Phnom Penh, declaring: "We believe political approach necessary lest finance ministries, who are generally opposed new aid programs, arrange for an evasive or negative reaction to the Cambodian appeal."

"Department believes high-level political appeal needed to improve chances for success. Letter from Lon Nol to heads of prospective donor governments could help nail down (contributions)."

"The suggested letter begins: 'Excellency: I am writing this note on a personal basis in order to bring your Excellency's attention directly to the economic problem that we are now confronted with in the Khmer Republic...'

It winds up: 'I am asking that your government make a contribution of... To the fund for 1972 at a meeting to be held in Phnom Penh (on January 14).'

All Lon Nol had to do was fill in the blank space with the correct amount for each country. The sums that will be sought are: U.S., $12.5 million; Japan, $7.5 million; Australia, $3 million; Britain, $500,000; New Zealand, $300,000; Indonesia, $250,000; Malaysia, $250,000; Singapore, $250,000; Thailand, $250,000 and the Philippines $250,000.

Despite the State Department's public pretense that Lon Nol is running his own fundraising drive, there's what the secret instructions add:

"Once letters sent, we prepared urge our embassies in key countries make high-level approaches in support of Lon Nol request. We understand that Japanese will then move out and actively lobby for participation in ESF. We can, on a selective basis, do some lobbying here, especially with UK and Australia."

These secret instructions, like the India-Pakistan revelations, demonstrate, sadly, that the government of, by and for the people cannot always be trusted to tell the people the truth.

California's Role

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Politically this great muscle-flexing state with its 158,700 square miles, 19.7 million people and official song entitled "I Love You, California" is a real potpourri.

It's as mixed as Coney Island on a hot Sunday and less predictable than any in the Union. Guessing California's party preference in this presidential year is about as easy as going into a refrigerator to check if its light has gone out.

If you add one and one, the most simple addition, the Republicans never have any more chance than Eliza fleeing across the fies. The Democratic registration wherein the voter declares himself or herself as member of that party, and which represents a party constituency, remains steadily around three to two over the Republicans.

President Johnson won this state in 1964 by 1.3 million votes, an absolute landslide. Yet George Murphy, running on the Republican ticket, won his Senate seat by 200,000 at the same time.

Within two years Ronald Reagan took the California governorship for the Republicans by more than a million votes. This was a turnover of more than 2.3 million votes since the LBJ landslide. Then Republican Governor Reagan was re-elected at the same time Republican Senator Murphy was defeated by Democrat John V. Tunney.

Yet the California pro-Democrat three-to-two remained practically unchanged throughout, and proved again about as meaningful as staging the "Nutcracker Suite" in a salt mine.

The answer to the paradox is, of course, the voter undeclared for any party and the ticket-splitting. Ticket-splitting has become the norm here and is rapidly becoming the national norm. Voters discriminate wholesale. They thus resist predictable patterns. Moreover, you find a discernable antiparty feeling here, as in much of our country.

This is California's capital and Governor Reagan himself has told me: "Political parties, as such, are losing stature. It's obvious that millions consider the man more important than the party."

As a result of the increasingly small influence, a party's ability to deliver votes regardless of its nominee is about as dangerous to count on as a blind man shooting the Grand Canyon rapids in a patched canoe.

Forthright Governor Reagan, highly appealing and a rocklike man in many respects, literally laughs at predictions based on registrations. "They're more bewildering than consequential," he said.

The Governor's supporters pushed him into the 1968 Miami Republican National candidate list at the last moment — but he has already vigorously declared for President Nixon in 1972. And this is an immense help to the President.

It is fashionable in liberal circles to downgrade Governor Reagan. Lunging at him like a Coast Guard icebreaker, their favorite fancy phrase for him is "aesthetically offensive" — a typically arrogant piece of double-dome nonsense. On one hand this element condones Mayor John V. Lind-say's flagrant failure on the absurd grounds that nobody can govern New York City. On the other, they condemn the success of Reagan in this potpourri California — larger than Japan and more populous than all New York State.

California's presidential impact is made famous by the 1916 Charles Evans Hughes-Woodrow Wilson race. Mr. Hughes was in New York on election night, the apparent winner. When newsmen telephoned his home for a statement someone replied: "The President has gone to bed." Then by morning the California returns were in. President Wilson won this state, and, by winning it, won re-election to the presidency by 277 electoral votes to Mr. Hughes' 254.

But if you analyze what happened to Richard M. Nixon in his last run for the presidency the earlier drama pales. Let me give you this eye-opener.

Winning the presidency requires a majority of 26 in the Electoral College. Mr. Nixon won California with its 40 electoral votes. His national total was 301. Hubert H. Humphrey's total was 191. George A. Wallace got 45.

Had Mr. Humphrey carried California he would have won only 15 of the 50 states. Mr. Wallace five. But California would have increased Mr. Humphrey's electoral votes to 231 and decreased Mr. Nixon's to 261.

This state would have kept Mr. Nixon from getting the required 269 majority and prevented anyone from being elected President of the United States at the polls.

Over-the-Counter Drugs

In these days of high costs for physicians and drugs, the over-the-counter drugs are a poor man's helping hand. Good or bad, often they are all the poor can afford. So that the over-all review, which the Food and Drug Administration plans concerning the safety and efficiency of the more than 100,000 nonprescription drugs on the market, will strike home to millions.

At present, the consumer depends on his own and the experience of his friends and the word of the manufacturer about the drug he selects. It is amazing how many prescribe for themselves. Their confidence can be shaken or confirmed by this investigation.

The FDA aim is to give the consumer assurance that the cold remedy, pain killer, sedatives, sleep aids, and other aids for minor illnesses and discomforts which he has used for so long, will really do what the label promises.

The federal agency has cleared many of the drugs, or their active ingredients, for safety, but not generally for effectiveness. Since 1962, FDA has had authority to rule on effectiveness and many of the drugs that came on the market in the last decade will now be subjected to that test.

A sampling of about 400 over-the-counter drugs of all kinds were reviewed for efficiency a few years ago. Only 25 per cent were rated effective. The rest were put in categories ranging from "probably effective" to "ineffective."

Dr. Charles C. Edwards, commissioner of Food and Drugs, said that panels of non-government scientists would be asked to review the over-the-counter drugs class-by-class rather than drug-by-drug.

The review will probably take three years. We'll know then whether we are throwing our money away or getting the relief promised.

Emergency Employment

Across the country, people who were unemployed, or under-employed in areas of severe unemployment, are going to work in public service jobs at the same rates of pay as regular city or state workers except for tenure only during the life of the federal program. The jobs are few, but welcome to the recipients.

First, professional jobs were filled, for instance, classroom teachers to meet urgent needs in some communities. The bulk are non-professional jobs for the lower-skilled or unskilled unemployed. Usually, veterans get first consideration, 55 per cent going to them. Heads of households come next, with 25 per cent, to allay as much of the suffering as possible.

Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson is hearing from big cities that their allotments barely scratched the surface of their numbers out of work. The program was supposed to fill the severest needs, but if the clamor is loud enough, Congress will be tempted to try again for a bigger program of work. The temptation in an election year is most compelling.

NEW THREAT TO JEWS.—Nahum Goldman, president of the world Jewish Congress, said in London that anti-Semitism was no longer the main danger facing Jewish communities. It has been replaced by a new threat—"the erosion and disintegration of Jewish values."

ALL GOALS FULFILLED.—George Hagedorn, chief economist of the National Association of Manufacturers, predicts fulfillment of most goals of President Nixon's economic policies in 1972, including a decline of unemployment to 5 per cent by the end of the year. He calls it a working year.

Bombings Meant to Spur Hanoi

WASHINGTON (VNA) — President Nixon's South Vietnam bombing must be studied primarily in relation to inflicting new taking place in Hanoi.

A strong body of opinion among Ho Chi Minh's successors has argued bitterly for two years that it is time for more resources to go to building their home base and less used in the expensive war in the south.

So far as can be determined from sources in the Far East who spend much of their time attempting to determine what is going on in Hanoi, the vote has now been taken.

Over the long run there will be a cutback in men going south, except for use on targets of opportunity in Laos and Cambodia and some sensational strikes in South Vietnam.

There will be Hanoi's version of Vietnamization, or "Vietnamization."

The steady drain of the long years of war, the heavy attrition of young manpower, the heavy setbacks caused by this season's floods, the loss of the Cambodian supply line, the heavy cost of a war that now spreads through Cambodia and Laos as well as Vietnam, the devastation caused by the years of U.S. bombing, and worry over a loss of heavy support from Peking apparently swung the balance. But the infighting continues.

Mr. Nixon's short-term bombings, though limited, serve to remind Hanoi that so long as the traditional war lasts, so long as American troops are in South Vietnam (which will be so long as American prisoners are held), then Hanoi will not know at what moment the raids may begin again. They may not seriously impair stability to supply its military forces. But if widened a bit, the raids could be used to seriously hurt long-term economic plans.

None of this is meant to imply that Hanoi is about to give up the war or to negotiate away their chips in South Vietnam.

What is meant is that if the new decisions in North Vietnam continue in force, Hanoi will readopt the slow, careful, extended-war concepts preached by Mao Tse-tung, with much more of the burden borne by the local Viet Cong.

The first stage, now in process, would be to rebuild the badly deteriorated VC political infrastructure by recruiting and training political, economic, intelligence and administrative cadres and truly local guerrillas.

This could take years. But in the Mao lexicon, this is the base which must exist if a guerrilla war is to be won. It was largely destroyed by attrition in the years just preceding Tet 1968. Thousands more essential cadres were destroyed in that botched Tet maneuver. The effort since has not been sufficient to offset accidents, aging, desertions and a growing lethargy.

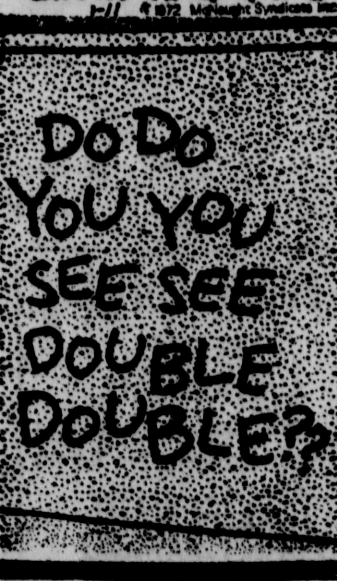

The middle and lower echelons of the legendary Viet Cong political infrastructure or underground government active in most of South

Vietnam's villages has sunk to such low levels as to be unreliable in Hanoi's current estimates.

As North Vietnam's program has been explained to this reporter, the first emphasis, then, will be placed on the rebuilding of the southern local organization to its previous efficiency. Concurrently, the air will be regularly sniffed for opportunists, political or economic deterioration in South Vietnam which would open the Saigon government to easy overthrow through Viet Cong alliances with other dissident groups.

The bombing is calculated to encourage the North Vietnamese to continue their shift to this "on-the-cheap" type of guerrilla war and abandon open invasion of the south.

TAG DAY FOR SCHULTZIE — City Clerk Louis F. DeCicco attaches a 1972 dog license to Schultzie, the Schnauser, with the assistance of Deputy City Clerk Rose Hogan. Schultzie's owner, Mrs. June Diamond, the mayor's secretary, brought the dog up to city hall this week to make sure he got his new license. DeCicco advises other city dog owners to stop in before the end of January for their dog licenses. After that, the delinquent lists are sent to the state and city dog catcher Louis Turck enters the picture. Schultzie, however, need have no fear of all that. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Red Hook School Board Increases Lunch Prices

By TIM SCHUSTER

RED HOOK Two possible changes affecting students at Red Hook Central School are increased lunch prices and outdoor commencement exercises, both beginning this year.

The Board of Education Monday night decided that lunch prices for children in grades 4-12 will be raised from 35 cents to 40 cents, effective Feb. 1, and adult lunches will be raised from 45 cents to 60 cents.

Business Manager Earl Friant outlined the reasons for this, noting a $7,000 loss on lunches last year and the fact that there hasn't been a price raise in eight years. He said that total cost of each lunch is 65 cents with the district paying about 43 cents for each lunch. A 350 per cent increase in free lunches, due to expanded federal guidelines, also has had an impact. Board Vice-President Robert Bowman also suggested a study to provide a greater variety of food, including bag lunches.

District Principal Russell Keefe asked that the board allow graduation exercises to be held outside the school building on a Saturday afternoon this year, as the gymnasium is not sufficiently large enough to accommodate either the crowds or the graduates on the stage.

This year's graduating class will contain about 150 persons. Graduation date this year will be June 24. The idea was approved, pending investigation of various types of accommodations. The board decided to grant permission for radio station WGHQ to broadcast the John Coleman basketball game live from Red Hook, and for Kingston Cablevision to tape the same game. The game will be held Jan. 18.

A report from board member Carl Stelman on the adult continuing education program had enrollment up substantially from last year's 335 fall registration to 452 in 1971. There were 29 courses available. Spring term classes will begin Feb. 7.

A "Grandparent Day" was proposed by Bowman and approved by the board for sometime this spring. Elementary school children may bring their grandparents to school for a special program or "adopted" senior citizens from the community.

A Mid-Hudson School Boards Institute program will be held Jan. 26 at the Camelot Inn, Poughkeepsie. Three members of the Fleischmann Commission will report on some findings of that group, charged by the governor to investigate in public education and make recommendations.

The Dutchess County School Boards Association winter meeting will concern itself with a study of BOCES Jan. 20 at the Center.

A preliminary service request for BOCES for the 1972-73 school year was approved by the board. While no figure can yet be ascertained, this year's allocation was about $143,000.

Contract Recommendations Made at DCC

By TIM SCHUSTER

POUGHKEEPSIE Contract award recommendations for construction of the academic and cafeteria buildings at Dutchess Community College have been announced by the college Board of Trustees.

In resolutions prepared for the Board of Representatives, who must award the bids, the trustees recommended apparent low bidders in the following categories:

major construction categories: For the academic building: general construction, Rand Construction Inc., New York City, $4,978,000; heating, ventilating and air conditioning, Mechanical Construction Corporation, Poughkeepsie, $1,350,840; plumbing, C.B. Strain and Son, Inc., Poughkeepsie, $399,949; and electrical, Luna Electric Company, White Plains, $733,300.

For completion of the cafeteria building, to be located adjacent to the new academic building on the eastern edge of the campus, the trustees recommended these apparent low bidders: general construction, Acme Builders, Long Island, $1,373,000; electrical, Luna Electric, $169,900; plumbing, heating, ventilation, air conditioning, C. B. Strain and Son, Inc., at $90,827 and $256,977 respectively; and Ark Company of New Jersey for kitchen equipment, $207,687.

A total of 46 firms submitted sealed bids for various construction trades relating to the new buildings on the campus. Specifications for the new academic buildings were prepared by the college's campus architects, the Perkins and Will Partnership, White Plains, and Simon Gulamerian, Poughkeepsie.

Specifications for the cafeteria were prepared by Gindele and Johnson Associates, Poughkeepsie, participating architects. The 142,216 square foot academic building, a four-level structure, will provide classroom facilities for the natural and physical sciences, laboratory facilities for the health technologies, and faculty offices.

New laboratories in modern languages, mathematics, and computer science will also be provided for an estimate 3,150 full-time students by the projected Aug., 1973 completion date of the new building.

The two-level cafeteria building will house new kitchen and dining facilities for students, faculty, and staff. Construction of the 32,813 square foot structure will permit the lower level of Dutchess Hall, which presently houses the college's dining area, to be converted into additional space for a student lounge and other student services.

The trustee emphasized the necessity for concurrence by the county representatives at the earliest possible date, saying, "Prior delays in the planning phases for the buildings have escalated costs to a critical point."

"Dutchess has emerged as a major educational resource providing quality education at moderate cost," said the trustees. "The completion of these new facilities is necessary if the college is to responsibly meet the educational needs of our citizens."

Dutchess Comptroller Calls for Prosecution

POUGHKEEPSIE

Nicholas M. Russo, Dutchess County Comptroller, today stated that he is requesting County Attorney Joseph Gellert to prosecute Aviation Commissioner Edward Sharples for the recovery of about $7,000 lent out by Sharples in violation of the law.

Russo said: "During the period Nov. 1, 1970 through May 7, 1971, the county's Commissioner of Aviation . . . extended credit for the sale of aviation fuel to Messrs. David A. Schroeder and Thomas W. Mitchell in the amount of $6,994.31. As of this writing, the amount in question has been uncollectable."

The Board ordered the attorney to institute action against Mitchell and Schroeder in June, 1971 with no result.

Russo claimed, "As the result of a more comprehensive pursuit by my office to recover the amount due, I have learned that the credit extended to Mitchell and Schroeder by . . . Sharples constituted a violation of the State Constitution . . . which states in part that no county shall give or loan any money or property to or in aid of any individual or private corporation or association."

And he said that the required bond of $5,000 on Sharples was not instituted until Sept. 23, 1971.

"I then researched Section 403 of County Law regarding official undertakings and discovered that . . . Sharples' neglect to furnish and file the required bond is deemed a refusal to serve and the office may be filled as in the case of a vacancy."

Russo continued in his letter to Gellert: "Since it is one of my responsibilities to see that the taxpayers' dollars are handled honestly and in accordance with law, I now call upon your department to institute whatever action is necessary to recover the amount of $6,994.31 plus interest from Edward Sharples . . ."

Tivoli Village Clerk Retires Vacancy Filled By Treasurer

TIVOLI

Tivoli village Clerk John Dembowski has retired from the post he has held for the past 41 years, effective immediately. It was announced at Monday night's village board meeting Dembowski's resignation was unanimously accepted, due to his retirement, and the vacancy of the part-time office was filled as treasurer Dora Gruntler assumed the dual role of clerk-treasurer.

She noted that the village is investigating the possibility of taking office space to the rear of the Tivoli Free Library so that the combined office may set regular business hours. Work currently is done out of the clerk-treasurer's home.

Two village trustees told The Freeman of their intentions to seek another term of office in the March 21 village elections. The two whose terms will expire are William Bain and William Herdman. Applications must be filed by any opponents.

A hearing on the proposed comprehensive zoning law, held prior to the regular meeting, elicited few comments from the small number of people present, but some points will be reexamined at a Feb. 7 Zoning hearing at the village offices. Grievance Day will be held at 8 p.m., Feb. 15 at the village offices for those with tax complaints.

An offer by Don Delony to remove dilapidated structures for $750 plus title to the old Broadway drug store property was considered by the board with no action taken in regular session.

Suit 'Hurts' Rifton Society

By WADE BURKHART

The $1.2 million fraud suit by two Californians against the Society of Brothers has deeply hurt the members of the society's Rifton community who know about it, according to a minister of the society.

Doug Moody, who identified himself as a minister of the society, said not all members of the community had been informed of the suit, and he could only issue a "personal statement" on the matter. He said the suit had "caused real pain" to those society members informed of it.

He said his first knowledge of the suit came from The Sunday Freeman (a wire service article about the suit appeared in last Sunday's Freeman), and had received no further information, nor heard of any papers being served.

He did talk to several members of the community who would have had direct knowledge of the events surrounding the suit, and their remembrances and his differed substantially from the details alleged in the California suit.

The suit was brought by David Ostrom of Newark, Calif., and Martha Fay Ostrom, of San Francisco, who charged their parents, David and Nancy Louise Ostrom, after joining the sect in 1954 and giving property worth $35,000, were expelled from the sect when all their money had been given, denied food and shelter, denied educational funds, and not given financial assistance to get on their feet outside the brother's community. The suit claims the Ostrom children were guaranteed an education up through and including the college of their choice.

They alleged breach of contract and fraud in the suit filed last Friday at Alameda County Superior Court.

Moody said the information he had gathered, including information from the steward of the Rifton community at the time of the Ostroms' entrance, showed they had not given anything approaching $35,000. Moody said the exact amount was not immediately available but "it was a small amount, at most no higher than four figures."

When the Ostroms entered the Society of Brothers in 1954, the same year Moody did, they took the Society's pledges dedicating their whole lives and all present and future property to the society, said Moody. He said they took the vows of the RIFTON society at the Rifton community in front of the whole community.

As to the suit's allegation that the Ostrom children were denied education in the college of their choice, Moody said no one entering the community at Rifton had ever been promised education at the college of their choice.

The suit further alleges the Ostroms were denied assistance once they left the community. Moody said to give assistance to those who left the community was a "fundamental" society policy. "They don't have a right to it, according to the vows they took," said Moody, "but the assistance is given as an essential of Christian love."

He said society members felt it all the more important to give love to those who are in difficulty, and if such aid was really not given the Ostroms society members would think it "a very serious failure."

As to why the Ostroms were expelled from the Society of Brothers, Moody would give no specific reason. He said there had been "trouble" in North Dakota and Pennsylvania (two other communities where the Ostroms lived), and that he had been at the North Dakota community. "It is difficult for us to talk against anyone, even to defend ourselves," said Moody, adding he was respecting the confidential nature of the community relationship.

Moody said the society would engage a lawyer to defend them. "If some one should take us into court, we will defend ourselves," he said.

The society has faced proscription in Nazi Germany, and the rigors of Paraguay's semitropical wilderness. Moody said this was the first time it had ever faced anything like the Ostroms' suit.

Clarification Given On Former Letter

DEAR ABBY: I hasten to advise you apparently I did not make myself clear when I wrote it was all right for a man to try to get his friend's wife pregnant, if his friend had tried and failed. I cited a Hindu religious book (The Vedas) as proof, but I did not mean to say it is all right in this age.

In these modern times it is better to get artificial insemination under the care of a registered doctor. Years ago no such thing was heard of, hence the advice in The Vedas. Nobody has ever done such a thing in India today, and personally, I would not go near it.

PREM AGARWAL
DEAR PREM: Thank you for clarifying your statement. I heard from many readers who took issue with it.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter (Sally) is 21 and has been married a year to Paul, a divorced man who has a 5-year-old son. The boy lives with his mother, but she sends him to Paul's whenever she wants to get rid of him, which is nearly every weekend.

At Christmas Paul said he and Sally were to go to his ex's house to watch Junior open his presents. Then the "ex" and Junior would be coming back to Paul's house, so the child could have another Christmas party in his daddy's house. My daughter refused to go along with these plans and I agreed with her. Paul went alone, and brought Junior back alone.

My daughter gets along fine with Paul, except where Junior is concerned.

I believe where there is a divorce and a child, the parents should do what they can for the child, but leave the other spouses out of it. What is your opinion?

SALLY'S MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: I think there should be a special place in heaven for any woman who marries a divorced man with a first family, because as far as the man is concerned (whether from guilt or whatever) his "first" family usually comes first. And the same holds true for a divorced woman with a first family.

DEAR ABBY I just read your letter about the woman with two young boys. She said she regretted having the second one. I went thru the same thing.
My oldest is 5 years old and the baby is 15 months old. The older boy was a model child. The baby was a headache from the word go. He cried constantly. He never slept unless I walked him, and to top it off he was built like a Sherman tank and I'm only 100 pounds. Abby, I would have given him away by 3 every morning if I could have, and I hated myself for feeling that way.

I talked it over with my doctor and he told me many mothers have a child like that. So tell that poor woman she is not alone, but to wait until the baby is old enough to run around, amuse himself, eat with the family and play with his brother, and he will settle down. Mine is still a lot of trouble, but he's improved tremendously and now I love him to pieces.

MANTUA (OHIO) MAMMA

DEAR ABBY: "Happy in San Angelo" praised her psychiatrist for curing her of a depression with hormones. A psychiatrist who even considers a physical cause for an emotional problem instead of blaming it on "mother" is a rare bird apparently found only in Texas. Too bad more of the same aren't around.

AMAZED IN MINNEAPOLIS
CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN TROUBLE AND ASHAMED" IN SAN FRANCISCO: If you're too ashamed to contact your parents directly, get in touch with their attorney, clergyman, family doctor or a relative or close friend. But let your parents know where you are. I promise you, you'll sleep better tonight. And so will they.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding" send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. (Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 10:25 a.m. WKNY-1490)

MR. AND MRS. SAM BARNETT of 43 Boulder Avenue, Kingston, were guests of honor at a surprise party given by their children in honor of their 60th wedding anniversary. The party was held Dec. 26 in the Dutch Rathskeller. The couple were married Jan. 4, 1912 in Morris Hall, New York City by Mr. Goldman, uncle of Mr. Barnett. They are the parents of four children, Albert, Charles, Mrs. Robert (Eloise) Resnick and Mrs. Charles (Blossom) Walczak, all of Kingston. They also have eight grandchildren and one great grandchild. Mr. Barnett was the former owner and operator of Barnett's Jewelry Store. The Barnetts, who are still receiving many congratulatory messages from relatives, and friends, also were congratulated by President Richard M. Nixon, Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller and Senator Edward Kennedy. (Freeman photo by Stoll)

Legion Aux. Will Raise Funds

The American Legion Auxiliary, Unit 72, of Lamouree-Hackett Post, Saugerties, is once again sponsoring the fund-raising campaign of The National Foundation-March of Dimes in the Saugerties area.

The whole month of January has been designated as March of Dimes month and canisters have been placed in important places throughout the business district where contributions of any size may be made. In addition to this the members of the auxiliary will make a concentrated effort during the last week of the month to cover all residential areas with the help of some of the youth groups who have volunteered to take over what used to be known as the Mothers March.

At the January 13 meeting of the auxiliary Mrs. Evelyn

Gypsy Scarf
The gypsy scarf worn on the head is great for keeping hair in place while you're doing some of the more active things. All it takes is a square scarf. Fold it into a triangle and tie it at the side of your head. Big earrings will complete the effect, if you want a total gypsy look.

Carnright, president, will announce the captains and workers of the various areas and it is hoped that many volunteers will aid in this campaign.

At the short business meeting in December which preceded the annual Christmas party, it was noted that there are now 70 paid-up members, with a quota of 104 to be reached by the end of the year; four members, the Mmes. Diane Bremser, Alice Kolano, Phyllis Bunch and Catherine Teetsell, worked six hours each at the gift shop in the Albany Veterans Hospital wrapping and marking presents for the patients to send home to their families; 235 paperback books were collected, 26 pounds of material for cancer pads donated; $77.59 worth of cash value coupons were collected and 145 Betty Crocker coupons sent to Diane Coddington in Accord for the Kidney Machine Fund Drive which ended on December 31.

Mrs. Phyllis Bunch and Mrs. Marge Kerbert will be in charge of the social hour which follows the meeting on Thursday night. Guests are welcome to attend.

FAMILY REUNION — Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hellenschmidt enjoyed the social festivities of a surprise dinner given at Sal-vucci's Restaurant in West Hurley on Sunday. The occasion served as a family reunion and a celebration of Mr. Hellenschmidt's 75th birthday. Friends and relatives attended from Long Island, Saugerties, Woodstock and Purling. The Hellenschmidt's, who reside on Onteroa Court in Shokan, have five children: Helmut of Purling; Rudy of West Hurley; Mrs. Irma Carr of Saugerties; Manfred of Shokan and Edward of Saugerties. They have three grandchildren and one great-grandchild. A nephew, Rheinhold Schoenleber of Long Island also attended the party. Mr. Hellenschmidt, a former post office employee in Purling, has been retired for approximately 20 years. (Freeman photo by Stoll)

UCAL Starts Inter-Divisional Play

Kingston Hosts Roosevelt at Field House

KINGSTON — The Roosevelt Presidents invade Kate Walton Field House tonight carrying a 4-1 record and a challenge to Mike Rienzo's Maroons. And in the UCAL, four of the five matchups loom as crucial to the participants as intra-divisional play begins.

Other games feature Ellenville receiving a visit from non-league opponent Fallsburg while Rhinebeck (4-0) hosts feeble Bi-Valley competitor Oakwood.

Many early season observers favored the Presidents to go all the way in the DCSL this year, but RHS has been slightly disappointing in their performances so far. The major setback was a loss at the hands of Our Lady of Lourdes, but the Hyde Park squad is trying to shake that off. In their last outing they toppled Poughkeepsie by a single point.

This one should be won off the backboards, and it will be up to Tom Turco, Chuck Jackson and Tony Adams to turn the tide.

Coleman versus Highland and Marlboro against Red Hook are the key battles in the tight Southern Division. The Statesmen suddenly found themselves in an unexpected tie for the division lead after whipping New Paltz last week, and should be sky-high to duel the host Big Blue. They'll have to be. Dick Becker's squad was mauled at Liberty in their last outing and will be looking to regain some self-respect. It's size against tenacity, and the stakes are first place.

The Dukes are rolling along right now with a share of first and a 4-2 slate, but it doesn't seem the men from Marlboro are destined for such lofty heights. Not particularly big, the Dukes haven't beaten a good team yet and could get their come uppance in Red Hook.

Rod Chando's Raiders, on the other hand, are long overdue. Embarrassed by Rhinebeck and unable to do much right against Onteora, the Raiders have too much potential to remain at .500.

The backcourts stack up as a standoff, so it's up to 6-4 Kevin Kelly if the Raiders are to stay in the race.

In the Northern Division, where nobody thinks about first place, Onteora and New Paltz lock horns at Boiceville for the second position. Frank Davis' Huges play physical basketball, but will have to overcome the problem of inertia to make this a ballgame. Center Jay Ackert should be in the lineup, but even his needed spark may not be enough.

The Indians have been getting better with age. Ron Pape has discovered some good depth on his bench, and the recent contributions of Al Donnels, Bruce Hurley and Pete Chepeleff have made OCS a tough customer.

Yes, Walkill, somewhere the sun is shining. Tonight, at least, for the Panthers who will finally have a chance to get into the win column. Pine Bush is the weakest team in the UCAL, and like Walkill is winless in five games.

Bill Pitcher has some talent in the Meredith-Countryman-Prisco trio, and should at last guide his club from the cellar depths.

Rondout at Liberty. There's not much more to say. The Indians have won five in the league so far, but that's only because that's all they've played. And the Ganders are not exactly setting the world on fire this year.

Still, Chick Beehans men are a sneaky bunch, and they knocked off Highland and almost beat Coleman . . . but that's too much to think about.

Super Challenge for Staubach

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — To Roger Staubach, the Super Bowl means more than a challenge to prove that the Dallas Cowboys can win the big ones—his own personal stake is an imposing one.

"I must win," he said solemnly today. "I must prove myself as a passer."

The strapping 6-3, 197-pound quarterback than I," he said during a practice break at the New Orleans Saints' workout field. "He has control of his team—I don't. That is the major difference."

Griese is a five-year veteran out of Purdue. This is the first regular season of play—virtualy the rookie year—for Staubach, who spent four years in Navy service, including a year in Vietnam, before returning to civilian life and pro football in 1969.

Whereas Griese is permitted by Coach Don Shula to call almost the entire game, Staubach is merely the feeder and the architect for Dallas' plays, shut-led by messenger from the bench on every down.

"When I feel my quarterback is experienced enough, I'll let him call the plays," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

Staubach is not offended so much by this lack of confidence as by the tag that has been plastered on him as "the scrambling quarterback."

"I don't like it that most people consider me primarily a runner instead of a passer," he said. "I can pass as well as anybody. My job now is to prove it."

Staubach, an all-around athlete in high school in his native Cincinnati, is a handsome, straight-backed athlete who is articulate, outspoken and still given to military protocol.

He calls almost everybody "sir."

"I'm really a sporadic runner," Staubach explained. "In some games I don't run at all. In others, I may run a great deal. It depends on the circumstances."

During the past season, Staubach rushed the ball 41 times for 343 yards and an 8.4 average with two touchdowns. He completed 126 of 211 passes for 1,882 yards and 15 touchdowns. H. had only four interceptions. Since he inherited the No. 1 Dallas job from Craig Morton, the Cowboys have won nine straight.

By comparison Griese has carried the ball 26 times for 82 yards—a 3.2 average—but completed 145 of 263 passes for 2,089 yards and 19 touchdowns. He had nine interceptions.

Wildcats Are Caged By Friars

By United Press International
Villanova staggered on Saturday and fell on Monday.

The 13th-ranked Wildcats, who soared into the ratings two weeks ago with an upset victory over South Carolina then ranked No. 2, struggled to a four-point victory over tiny Canisius Saturday and it proved to be a danger sign.

Providence turned that danger into reality Monday night with a 76-69 upset victory over Villanova, the Wildcats' second loss in 12 games this season.

Marvin Barnes and Larry Ketvirtis scored 22 points each and the Friars' defense limited Villanova to only two baskets during the last 15:32 of the game to bounce back from a five-point deficit. Villanova went almost 11 minutes in one stretch of the second half without a field goal.

In the only other action involving rated teams, Kentucky (18) crushed Mississippi State, 104-76, and No. 20 Maryland nipped Wake Forest, 49-46.

Jim Andrews hit 34 points and Tom Parker hit 28 as Kentucky routed Mississippi State, Kentucky, now 8-2, surged to a 54-27 lead at the half and coasted the rest of the way.

Tom McMillen's 17 points helped Maryland defeat Wake Forest. McMillen, a highly touted 6-foot-11 sophomore, hit a pair of free throws to break a 43-43 tie and moments later tapped in a rebound to put the Terps ahead to stay. Willie Griffin and Sam Jackson had 14 points each to lead Wake Forest.

Elsewhere, Al Williams scored 28 points as Niagara boosted its record to 11-1 with a 76-70 victory over Long Island University and Al Davis' 19 points and 15 rebounds helped Hawaii down Rice, 84-65. Ernie Fleming scored 28 points to spark Jacksonville to a 95-75 triumph over East Tennessee State and Kent Scott and Bill Knight combined for 51 points as Pittsburgh stopped previously unbeaten West Virginia, 91-76.

Chuck Jura scored 28 points and grabbed 19 rebounds as Nebraska beat Oklahoma, 77-70, and Mike Green hit 29 points and took down 21 rebounds as Louisiana Tech whipped McNeese State, 114-90.

In other games, Tennessee edged Mississippi, 73-70, Tulane topped The Citadel, 67-61, Oral Roberts downed Eastern Kentucky, 102-96, Wichita State beat Loyola (Ill.), 71-57, and Oklahoma City defeated Southern Methodist, 97-88. The Alabama-Louisiana State game was postponed because of curfew restrictions imposed in Baton Rouge, La., due to riots.

THE SILENT ONE: While the rest of the Dallas Cowboy team talked to newsmen and posed for photographers, running back Duane Thomas sat alone in the bleachers surrounding the New Orleans Saints practice field where the Cowboys are training in preparation for their Jan. 16 meeting with Miami in the Super Bowl. Thomas who has refused to talk to newsmen since his contract dispute with Cowboy management preseason, kept his record clean as he refused to talk to newsmen at the Cowboy press day Monday in New Orleans. (UPI)

Thomas Invokes Fifth Amendment

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—If the Miami Dolphins don't handle Duane Thomas any better than the Super Bowl press corps did, the Dallas Cowboys will run away with next Sunday's big battle for the pro football title.

The press never came close to laying a verbal finger on Thomas, the Cowboys' great running back, in their first attempt to get one single comment out of him in advance of the Super Bowl.

Thomas just sat there and ignored them.

"What do you think of Miami's defense, Duane?" was one newsmen's effort. Thomas, dressed in full uniform with the big number 33, just sat in the stands, squinted at the sun, and said nothing.

"What about your attitude, anyway?" tried another reporter, just a shade more belligerently.

Silence.

"Are you fitting in with your teammates?" Silence.

Down on the field, the rest of the Cowboys were going through the scheduled picture session with the press and talking to reporters. If Thomas noticed them, he didn't say anything about that either.

Finally, when the newsmen quit trying, Thomas suddenly came up with a question: "Anybody got the time?"

"Five after 11," answered one newsmen, maybe hoping it would set a trend. It didn't. After a few minutes more, Thomas got up, stretched, and walked away to the dressing room without saying, "So long."

"It's true he doesn't communicate with the press," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. "But he certainly prepares for the game. How he prepares is his own business. So we accept that."

Archer's Putting Still the Finest

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Take a guy 6-feet-6 and 200 pounds and he looks like any kind of an athlete but a golfer.

Despite his size—his tree-limb forearms and hands like the proverbial hams—big George Archer has a sensitive touch when it comes to putting.

He didn't drive too well

Monday in the 18-hole playoff for first money of $25,000 in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open, but his putting paid off—he shot a five-under-par 66 on the Rancho Park muni course to beat Tommy Aaron and Dave Hill by two strokes.

He took just 28 putts, had six birds and one bogey on his round of 32.34. He was wild from the tee on the fifth hole, driving the ball off to the adjoining fairway but he saved par by sinking a 15-foot putt. The key hole, however, was No. 17, a par three, 216 yards. Archer hooked his tee shot to the left and it landed behind a maple tree. He was five under par at the time but Aaron was on the green six feet from the pin.

Archer Needs Birdie

"If I make a bogey and he gets a bird, we're even because he's three under," said Archer. Archer hit a low seven iron and his ball slid past the hole about six feet.

Archer shows little emotion although inside he admitted he's in knots sometimes. He sank the putt for his par after Aaron missed his birdie putt. Hill, erratic but dangerous as usual, had six birdies and three bogeys on his round of 34-34-68. Aaron had one bogey and four birdies as he also carded 34-34.

"It's a long time since I shot five rounds of 70 or better and I've got to be pleased with that," said Hill who on Saturday claimed he hated the game of golf. "I've been beating that little white ball around since I was 8 years old and I'm tired," he said at the time.

Wins Only Two

Aaron, who has won only two major events in 11 years as a pro but has earned more than half a million dollars, took his loss with class. "I had opportunities but I didn't make the most of them," he said.

The three tied with 270, 14 under par, Sunday at the end of 72 holes. The money was good for the playoff trio. CBS paid them each $5,000 as a bonus for the "V" appearance Monday. Archer thus got $30,000. Hill and Aaron divided second and third money—$11,575 each in addition to the $5,000.

Frazier Talks About Daniels

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier saw Terry Daniels' most impressive fight and Frazier wasn't impressed.

Frazier, who makes his eighth title defense against Daniels Saturday night, watched Daniels win a 10-round decision over Manuel Ramos, the Mexican heavyweight champion, last July 26 in Houston's Astrodome. Frazier noted he saw the fight and then began apologizing for Daniels.

"Of course, you don't judge a fighter on one fight," said Frazier. "He may be better than that. Sometimes a guy has to fight different because of his opponent. I don't know if Daniels was at his best then or not."

Daniels, who has a 29-4-1 record since turning pro three years ago, said that was his finest fight.

"I derived the most confidence from it," Daniels said. "It was in front of a big crowd and it was a big fight for me."

Platts Rims 48 In CYO Contest

Vino Platts pumped in 48 points to lead St. Peter's past St. Joseph's, 78-69, in a CYO Senior League basketball contest. Platts made good on 22 field goal attempts and added four free throws in his sparkling performance.

Mike Sass and Brian LaTorre hit in double figures for St. Peter's, with 14 and 11 points respectively. St. Peter's outscored their opponents in each of the first three periods. The scoring: St. Peter's (78): Daniels 48, Sass 14, LaTorre 11, Mercier 5, Struble 0. St. Joseph's (69): Ryan 23, Anderson 22, Bertoni 8, Manceen 6, Schatzel 6, Korgowski 2, Ross 2.

New Paltz Rally Falls Short In Loss to Quinnipiac Five

NEW PALTZ — New Paltz shot 40 per cent from the field (32-74) and almost 80 per cent from the free throw (27-34) in one of its top efforts of the season. But Quinnipiac's two big operators — Bob Vacca (25) and Frank Johnson (27) proved their undoing.

"When we broke so well, I thought we were putting it all together and could win this one," Pesavento noted. "But some costly turnovers late in the game hurt us badly."

The Nutmegers fended off New Paltz's last surge in the last few minutes to grind out a 96-91 victory, their ninth in 14 decisions. The loss was the eighth in 10 starts for the financially pressed Hawks, who have been playing completely respectable basketball after a shaky start.

scoring 23 points and Valdez leading with 24.

The Hawks trailed by as much as 16 points 82-66, with seven minutes left to play. Valdez and Galuski then triggered a New Paltz rally that cut the margin to 92-89 with three minutes remaining.

The contest was decided in the next 90 seconds. Quinnipiac moved into a freeze and held the ball for about a minute. The Hawks broke it up in inevitable fashion by fouling Vacca, who missed the first free throw on a 1-and-1 situation.

Then came the crusher. Valdez was called for an offensive foul against Johnson, who calmly converted both free throws and moved the visitors ahead, 94-89.

"That was the key play of the game at that late stage," said Pesavento.

New Paltz broke to a 19-11 lead at the start of the game, fell behind 55-45, then rallied for 10 straight points to tie it 55-55 before falling behind 57-55 at halftime. That's the kind of game it was.

BOICEVILLE — The Utica Wreckers, members of the New York State Professional Basketball League, will meet the Connecticut Explorers Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Onteora Central School gym.

The Wreckers are led by Phil Schoff, former Syracuse U. cager, who once played for the Atlanta Hawks. Schoff, averaging more than 40 points a game, is ably assisted by Bob Modliszewski, the all-time scoring ace at Ithaca College.

The Wreckers look to 6-8 center Paul Stappenbach of St. Bonaventure and Al Jensen, former Little All-American from St. Lawrence U. to control the boards.

Greene, until recently a member of the New York Nets.

The Wreckers' opponents in Saturday's game are the Connecticut Explorers, who boast some of the best basketball talent in New England.

A preliminary game at 6:30 p.m. pits the Phoenicia Woodstock Recreation All-Stars against Our Lady of Lourdes of Utica.

MOUNT SNOW, VT. — Terje Overland of Norway won the slalom and took Overall honors in the windup of the $20,000 Oldsmobile Cup, the second meet of the Benson and Hedges pro skiing Grand Prix over the weekend.

Jaycees Lose First

KINGSTON Kiwanis handed the league-leading Jaycees their first loss after five wins, 28-19, in the Biddy Basketball League. In other games, Recs tripped the Lions 20-6 and Dunham Tunnel rallied in the last quarter for a 31-29 squeaker over DeMico Motors.

Top scorers in the league were Steve Jackson 18, Kevin Jordan 13 and Phil Brown and Steve Costello with 12 each.

The scores: Recs (20) — Costello 12, V. Costello, B. Reilly, P. Reilly, Binney 3, Jordan 1, M. Reilly, Salzmann, D. Jordan 4, McGrane, Stevens.

Lions (6) — Kivlan 2, Olsen 4, J. Kivlan, P. Haber, Uhl, Vandermark, Mills, Stickle, Uhl, M. Haber.

DeMico (29) — J. Brown 10, P. Brown 12, Dingman 2, McWeeney 2, McCloskey, Short, B. Scheffel, B. Rowles, P. Scheffel 3, Rowles.

Dunham (31) — Lasher 3, Jackson 18, Cahill 18, Fleckinger 4, Stote 6, Larkin, M. Pagliaro, Dugan, R. Pagliaro, Lasher, Prosser, Madden.

Kiwanis (28) — V. Ferraro 7, Jordan 13, T. R. Gallo 4, Mayhood 2, Gray, B. Ferraro, Bitone, E. Jordan 2.

Jaycees (19) — Reynolds 8, Vertetti 6, B. Robertson 4, Roedel, Foster, Mahoney, Showers 1, White E. Robertson.

Overland was third in Saturday's Giant Slalom which was won by Hugo Nindl, the 29-year-old, eight-time Austrian team member out of Hunter Mountain, N.Y.

A mishap to Spider Sabich, top money winner in the 1970-71 Professional Ski Racers tour, helped Nindl to his first place Saturday. The win was worth $2,500 to Nindl.

The mishap to Sabich on the second of two runs in the final race near the top of the abbreviated 32-gate Giant Slalom course, which dropped 450 feet, was a key factor in his defeat.

Sabich was late leaving the gate in the second head-to-head with Nindl and then struck a slalom pole with his face. The contact pushed Sabich's goggles over his forehead and he was unable to adjust himself until the final three gates. By that time the speedy Nindl had clinched the victory by the scant margin of 135th of a second for the two runs.

Sabich is the current tour leader with earnings of $6,500 in the opening event on the tour at Vail, Colorado.

The next stop for the touring pros will be Iron Wood Ridge at Cazenovia, N.Y., within two weeks.

Jenkins Pact Around 125Gs

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Cubs pitcher Ferguson Jenkins will be paid more than $100,000 annually for the next two years under a new contract, announced by the Cubs Monday.

The lanky, Canadian-born Jenkins reportedly will be earning $125,000, but the Cubs refused to specify his precise salary, saying only he would earn "in excess of $100,000."

Jenkins, 28, thus becomes the highest paid Cub in history, moving ahead of teammate Billy Williams who became the Cubs' first $100,000 a year player last year.

Coaches Picked For All-Star

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tom Heinsohn of the Boston Celtics and Bill Sharman of the Los Angeles Lakers were automatic choices Monday to serve as coaches of the East and West squads, respectively, in the National Basketball Association's All-Star Game in Los Angeles, Jan. 18.

Heinsohn and Sharman were selected because their respective clubs had the best won-lost records in their conferences.

Added to the East squad by vote of the coaches were Butch Beard and John Johnson of the Cleveland Cavaliers, Jack Marin and Archie Clark of the Baltimore Bullets, Tom Van Arsdale of the Cincinnati Royals and Bob Kauffmann of the Buffalo Braves.

The six players added to the West squad were Connie Hawkins and Paul Silas of the Phoenix Suns, Sidney Wicks of the Portland Trail Blazers, Elvin Hayes of the Houston Rockets and Bob Lanier and Jimmy Walker of the Detroit Pistons.

Coach Resigns, Names New One

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (UPI) — Doug Adam, coach and general manager of the American Hockey League Rochester Americans, resigned his coaching post Monday and immediately named defenseman Don Cherry as the club's new coach.

Adam, who will remain with the club as general manager, resigned after the Americans suffered an 8-1 setback at the hands of Nova Scotia Sunday night.

Adam said he and Cherry have a "handshake agreement" for the remainder of the season.

In Sunday's game at Rochester, Adam was the target of booing and name calling from irate Rochester fans.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

CHUCK AND JIM: (Q.) Chuck and I went together two and a half months. I really loved him and I still do. But he cheated on me. He went out with Jane. I broke up with him. A few days later he moved away and I started going skating with Jim. I like Jim but I don't love him. I don't love anybody but Chuck.

Well, Chuck wrote my girl friend, Betty, and asked her why I broke up with him. He told her he had already bought a pre-engagement ring and was planning to give it to me. Then I told him it was all over with us.

Betty wrote him and told him it was because he went out with Jane. He wrote Betty back and told her that Jane didn't mean anything—that she was just a friend of his family. He also told Betty he was moving back. He also told her he wanted to go back with me.

I don't know what to do. I'm going out once or twice a week with Jim. What Chuck sees us together he will be hurt. But if Chuck does ask me to go back with him and Jim sees us together, HE will be hurt.

I don't know what to do. Please help me.—Tangled Up in New Mexico.

(A.) Tell the truth. If Chuck asks you to go with him again, tell him about Jim.

If Jim asks you about Chuck, tell him the truth. You have not, if your story is straight, been dishonest to or deceived either boy. Do not start deceiving now. It does not pay.

I do not think that as things are now it would be wise to accept Chuck's ring or to resume going steady with him. Remember that, although you say you love Chuck, you have been getting along quite well with Jim.

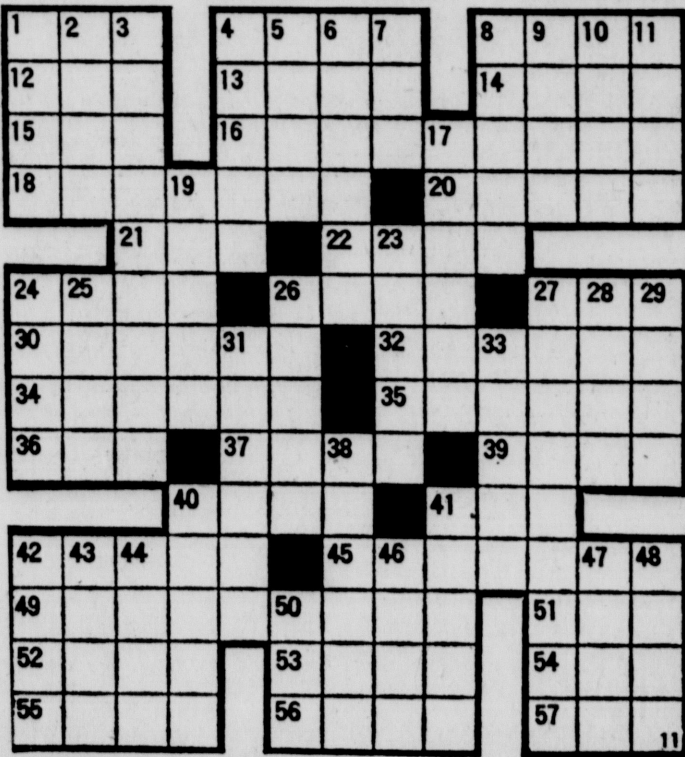

You don't want to hurt either boy. That tells me you are pretty fond of both.

So, in addition to being honest with both of them why not try dating both of them. It would be good for you, and maybe for them too.

Nostalgia Comes to Tube

NEW YORK (AP) — "Hollywood: The Dream Factory" is a new documentary production that viewers are fashioning their own retrospectives of the by-gone era of magic and enchantment and the kickoff of ABC's midseason "Monday Night Special" by MGM. The program consisted mostly of bits from the studio's old movie features and an unimaginative script read in rather flat style by Dick Cavett. It seemed more like a device to fill time with material at hand than a meaningful documentary about big movies and adoring audiences. Nostalgia is, of course, big these days and appreciation of old movies is something of a cult. It apparently has not occurred to documentary producers that viewers are fashioning their own retrospectives of the golden stars and hits of early Hollywood—they are visible daily on television. A bit from "Show Boat," a 1951 musical, had its place in the program Monday night—and a week ago it was a two-hour film feature on NBC. When the program used old newsreel clips of gatherings of stars, the program picked up in interest. But from snippets of old Mickey Rooney-Judy Garland shows to Gene Kelly dancing through a deluge to "Sing in the Rain," the program old movies is something of a promotional spots for coming attractions more than a well-conceived study of Hollywood at the end of an era. David Wolper's "Hollywood: The Golden Years," turned out several years ago with wit and imagination, told the story with more impact and class. ABC proposes to fill the hour next week with acts from a European ice show. "All in the Family" undoubtedly has finished shooting this season's quota of programs: Carroll O'Connor, who plays Archie Bunker in that hit, could sing in a passable baritone not keep all those guest star dates on variety and talk shows, which he had written. He really got out of the loveable bigot image Monday in his second appearance in as many weeks on "The Sonny and Cher Show." He romped in the sketches, playing Napoleon and Samspon, finally turning up in Carroll O'Connor, who plays Archie Bunker in that hit, could sing in a passable baritone not keep all those guest star dates on variety and talk shows, which he had written.

10-9 Fit for False-Cards

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Today's hand is like yesterday's in its theme about the 10 and nine of trumps.

We hold no brief for anyone's bids but the final contract of

This time if West opens the nine of trumps it isn't likely to do him any good. Everyone expects irregular leads against slam contracts and if South just plays low from dummy he will have no trouble making seven.

Therefore West makes his normal lead of the six of diamonds. East wins the trick and returns a heart. South wins in dummy; leads the three of trumps and plays his queen after East follows with the deuce.

At this time it is up to West to false-card by playing either the nine or 10. If West plays the five South will have to continue by playing the ace of trumps. The king will drop and it will be curtains for the defense.

After the false card South will have a problem. Should that be a play from 10-9 doubleton or from a singleton the winning play would be to go back to dummy and lead the jack of trumps. South won't know and may guess wrong.

WHY WE SAY

TYCOON

FROM JAPAN: A great businessman may be referred to as a "tycoon." Com. Perry brought this word back to America in 1854 from Japan. It derives from "tai" for great and "kun" for prince. In Japan, the expression is used mostly by foreigners and is not in regular usage.

Air Defense Report... Risky

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators say failure of U.S. air defenses to spot a lumbering Cuban airliner before it landed at New Orleans last fall demonstrates an enemy attack could be launched from the south "with little risk of being detected in advance."

A report released today by the House Armed Services investigating subcommittee says U.S. authorities—despite three hours' notice—did not know the plane had penetrated American defenses until its pilot radioed for landing instructions.

The report calls the existing American air-defense system "virtually useless" and says a 1,500-mile gap between Florida and California is "virtually devoid of military surveillance and air-defense command and control."

"Since our potential enemies know of the gaping holes in our air defenses," said Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., "I think it is high time that the American people were let in on this open secret."

Hebert's subcommittee urged Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird to speed up lagging development of a new air-defense system—and for now install a sophisticated, new, over-the-horizon radar to cover Cuba and the Gulf of Mexico.

Gen. Seth J. McKee, commander of the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) estimated the interim southern coverage would cost $70 million to $125 million.

McKee testified NORAD did not know the Russian-built Cuban airliner headed toward New Orleans last Oct. 26 with 21 Cuban sugar conferees had penetrated U.S. defenses until it was informed the pilot had radioed the New Orleans tower for landing instructions 33 minutes earlier.

That report to NORAD was interrupted with the information that the Cuban plane was on the ground, McKee testified.

Hebert's subcommittee said Havana had messaged the Miami Air Traffic Control almost four hours earlier with a flight plan, and the information was relayed to a variety of points including NORAD, the State Department, the Federal Aviation Administration headquarters in Washington and the New Orleans control tower.

The subcommittee said the FAA urged the State Department to permit the plane's entry so as not to endanger release from Havana of a hijacked American Airlines 747 with 235 passengers.

It also said the State Department notified NORAD the Cuban plane probably would not make the flight because the Havana airport was closed for the arrival of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygi.

South Vietnam Abandons Base, Cambodians Refuse Takeover

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese abandoned its major Cambodian base at Krek today and left Cambodian forces to defend it. The Cambodians refused to take over the outpost and military sources said thousands of them fled across the border into South Vietnam.

In the air war, North Vietnamese antiaircraft crews fired missiles at a U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom jet over Sepone in the Laotian Panhandle for the first time in the war. A U.S. fighter-bomber struck inside North Vietnam.

Reports from Laos said the allied position was deteriorating rapidly with the abandonment to the North Vietnamese of the key defensive position of Sam Thong and of Ban Nhik 18 miles east of the commercial center of Pakse. Fighting was also reported near the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) base at Long Cheng.

The South Vietnamese pulled out of Kre, Suong and other bases in the rubber plantation area of the Saigon government's latest Cambodian operation in order to return the troops to the South Vietnamese capital and its environs in case the Communists launch an expected offensive.

Col. Thach Chanh, commander of the Cambodians, said it was impossible for his unit to stay at Krek after the South Vietnamese left.

"I know that within 24 hours after you (the South Vietnamese) go, we will all be overrun," Thach said. He said he would rather fall than stay in the camp at Krek without Vietnamese support.

South Vietnamese spokesmen declined to comment on the desertion by the Cambodians at least partly because of political problems between South Vietnam and Cambodia resulting from alleged looting and violence against Cambodian civilians by South Vietnamese operating in Cambodia over the past two years.

In Phnom Penh, the Cambodian command announced two major operations north and south of Phnom Penh, one of them in conjunction with South Vietnamese troops in Thailand. The Cambodian command in Phnom Penh said one of the sweep operations was on the lower reaches of the Mekong River southeast of the Cambodian capital, and the other was a land and sea drive on and around Tonle Sap, Cambodia's great lake, northwest of Phnom Penh.

The Mekong River campaign was supported by South Vietnamese troops.

Lt. Col. Am Rong, the official Cambodian military spokesman, did not disclose the number of troops involved in the new operations, which began Monday, but said there were a "sizeable" number of South Vietnamese troops involved in the Mekong operation centered 35 miles southeast of the capital.

In Phnom Penh, six drug stores were shut down by military order and their owners jailed in what military authorities said was the stockpiling of medicine destined for the Viet Cong.

The U.S. command at U-Tapao Air Base south of Bangkok, Thailand, said today the three B52 bombers damaged by Communists bomb squads Monday were back flying missions over Indochina. Thai sources said the Viet Cong sapper shot and killed by a U.S. sentry may have been the only one actually to have penetrated the huge strategic air command base.

The Thai government said today the attack on U-Tapao Air Base was a failure.

The Viet Cong wounded seven South Vietnamese militiamen in an attack on Tan Binh district headquarters six miles west of Saigon Monday. It was the closest attack to Saigon since the Communist blew up an ammunition dump at Go Vap on the city's northwest edge in September.

Council to List Violators

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government has decided to start naming names so that the public will know which retail stores are violating the price controls.

The Cost of Living Council, which administers the overall economic control machinery, announced the new policy Monday, saying it also would disclose information on the people who work for it so that the public will be guarded against conflicts of interest.

Ever since the wage-price freeze ended, the council has tried to negotiate in private with firms found in violation of wage or price rules. Names have been made public only if the Justice Department had to take the case involved to court—something it has done against three landlords and one transit company.

"Names of violators will now be disclosed in a number of circumstances and ... results of an investigation may also be reported to a complainant," the council said. A spokesman added "we are talking about retail stores."

In another economic development, the Price Commission issued regulations covering the insurance industry which it said would cut anticipated increases in premium payments by 35 percent to 40 percent.

The rules are complicated because of the methods insurance firms use to compute their rates and because costs vary with each policy. But as an example, it said that a premium that would have gone up from $185 to $223 this year will rise to $210 instead.

The commission ruled that the amount of insurance premium increases due to inflation would be limited to five-eighths of what the increases normally would have been. It also said that premium increases made because of company controlled costs would be limited to 2.5 percent—and the same limit would be placed on increases in the actual dollar amount of the profit portion of the premium.

State insurance departments will list the new regulations and insurance firms seeking rate increases will have to obtain approval from the department in their state.

The House Banking Committee meanwhile told both the Price Commission and the Pay Board that it will hold an investigation if it is not satisfied the two panels are properly carrying out the law which created them.

Manned Spaceflight Chief Predicts Shuttle Support

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—The chief of manned spaceflight predicts that Congress will support the new space shuttle and that development will lead to low altitude flight tests in 1975 with an all-out orbital launch two or three years later.

"Congress last year supported the shuttle pretty strongly and I expect that Congress will support this program," said Dale D. Myers, who is in charge of NASA's manned missions into space.

President Nixon Wednesday gave the agency the go-ahead to begin full-scale development of the $5.5 billion rocket plane. His decision came under immediate fire from Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and other leaders of the successful fight against the supersonic transport.

Myers said at a news conference Monday that the shuttle opens new opportunities for developing earth resources sensors and other systems that will support man on earth.

"And I think Congress really feels that's an important element the shuttle has to offer," he said.

He said the delta-wing orbiter is expected to begin two years of atmospheric flight tests in 1975 and make its first manned orbital test in 1977 or 1978.

One of its first operation missions will be to orbit a trailer-sized laboratory manned by as many as six scientists. The lab will remain inside the shuttle's 15-by-60-foot cargo bay and return to earth after a stay of anywhere from a week to a month.

The shuttle itself will be manned by a crew of four—two pilots and two engineers who also will serve as cargo masters when the craft is carrying automated satellites into space.

Myers said the space agency has not yet decided what type of unmanned rocket will launch the shuttle. He said the two prime candidates are a liquid fueled booster with six engines and a combination of solid propellant rockets.

The liquid fueled booster would burn kerosene or liquid propane with liquid oxygen. It would parachute back into the ocean 200 miles down range and a ship would tow it back to the launch site for use again. Each would cost $50 million and make a number of flights.

The solid rockets would be discarded after each launch. They would cost $7 million to $8 million per flight and would be cheaper to develop.
